Energy-saving program may expand

The Cincinnati-Hamilton County Community Action Agency plans to expand its home weatherization program for low-income families by more than 10 percent this year.

Last year the program provided insulation, caulking and more efficient appliances to 440 dwellings, and the agency plans to expand to about 500 this year. The free service begins with an energy audit and then agency technicians handle the improvements that can cut energy bills by 30 percent or more. For information, call 513-569-1840.
